Make choice of whome your wiſeſt friends you will,
And they ſhall heare and iudge twixt you and me,
If by direct or by colaturall hand
They find vs toucht, we will our kindome giue,
Our crowne, our life, and all that we call ours
To you in ſatisfaction; but if not,
Be you content to lend your patience to vs,
And we ſhall ioyntly labour with your ſoule
To giue it due content.

Laer. Let this be ſo.
His meanes of death, his obſcure funerall,
No trophæ, ſword, nor hachment ore his bones,
No noble right, nor formall oſtentation,
Cry to be heard as twere from heauen to earth,
That I muſt call't in queſtion.

King. So you ſhall,
And where th'Offence is, let the great axe fall.
I pray you goe with me. Exeunt.

Enter Horatio and others.

Hora. What are they that would ſpeake with me?

Gen. Sea-faring men ſir, they ſay they haue Letters for you.

Hora. Let them come in.
I doe not know from what part of the world
I ſhould be greeted. If not from Lord Hamlet. Enter Saylers

Say. God bleſſe you ſir.

Hora. Let him bleſſe thee too.

Say. A ſhall ſir and pleaſe him, there's a Letter for you ſir, it came from th'Embaſſador that was bound for England, if your name bee Horatio, as I am let to know it is.

Hor. Horatio, when thou ſhalt haue ouer-look't this, giue theſe fellowes ſome meanes to the King, they haue Letters for him: Ere wee were two daies old at Sea, a Pyrat of very warlike appointment gaue vs chaſe, finding our ſelues too ſlow of ſaile, we put on a compelled valour, and in the grapple I boorded them, on the inſtant they got cleere of our ſhip, ſo I alone became their priſoner, they haue dealt with me like theeues of mercy, but they knew what they did: I am to doe a turne for them, let the King haue the Letters I haue ſent, and repayre thou to mee with as much ſpeed as thou would'ſt fly death. I haue words to ſpeake in thine eare will make thee dumbe, yet are they

And you muſt put me in your heart
Sith you haue heard and with a kno
That he which hath your noble fath
Purſued my life.

Lar. It well appeares: but tell m
Why you proceede not againſt theſe
So criminall and ſo capitall in nature
As by your ſafety, greatnes, wiſdom
You mainly were ſtirr'd vp.

King. O for two ſpeciall reaſons
Which may to you perhaps ſeeme m
But yet to me tha'r ſtrong, the Quee
Liues almoſt by his lookes, and for m
My vertue or my plague, be it either
She is ſo concliue to my life and ſoul
